A Narrow Escape of John Chinaman About 11 o'clock this morning a negro named James Broger entered the Chinese laundry on Center street, between High and Main, and tried to take away some clothes without giving up his check or paying for the same. The proprietor of the laundry objected to doing business in this way, whereupon Broger struck him a hard blow in the stom ach with his fist. The Chinaman droppe immediately and lay for a long time as though dead. Dre. Russell, Hodson and several other worked for three hours with bim to bring him to, and finally succeeded so far that the chances are now favorable for his recovery Brogan and another negro, who was with bim, were both arrested.

The Drowning of Clinton Baker.

Yesterday atternoon, between three and four o'clock, several boys from town went in bathing in Mad river, a short distance below Rubsam's mill. Shortly after entering the water Clinton Baker and a companion named Frank Jones started down stream, swimming close together, side by side. Suddenly Clinton seized Frank around the neck and drew him under water. The latter exerted all his powers to reach the bank and bad almost sucseeded, having, in the meanwhile, been dragged under a second time, when Clinton released his hold, threw up his arms, and sank. At this time there were present but three boys, Wilbur

Barnes, Homer Baker, a brother of Clinton, and Frank Jones. The cries of these boys soon attracted a number of people to the spot, and the work of recovering the body was at once begun. Word was sent to the patrol station, and the wagon with several officers was soon on the ground. Up to this time the search had been conducted entirely by diving, but a raft and a number of pikepoles were obtained at the railroad bridge above, and more systematic measures taken. All efforts had proved unsuccessful, when, about 6 o'clock, the wagon and most of the crowd left and came back to town. A party Bert Farrell and William Rickerts, continued the search, and a little before 7 o'clock with the assistance of the others, easily prought to shore. At the time when found it was lying in about six feet of water, some 75 or 100 teet from the spot where the drowning occurred. Clinton Baker was about sixteen years old and lived with his widowed mother at 147 East Patton street, where the body was taken by the patrol wagon last evening, Coroner Coleman taking charge of it. He was subject to epileptic attacks and his death yesterday was probably due to one of these. The Cotoper will hold his inquest this afternoon or

It is said here today that the Daytons have signed Geo. Rhue, of last year's Springfields. George is a plumb good one.

The Springfields got away last night for Youngstown and Erie; eleven men and the new uniforms. Inquest. In Saturday evening's GLOBE REPUBLIC it was announced that the remains of Adin (not Adrian) Barnes, the Obio Southern yardmaster killed Friday evening, would be removed Monday to Cardington, Ohio, for interment. Circumstances were such, however, that it became necessary the interment should be on Sunday, and services were, accordingly held at 8:30 a m., at the former residence of the deceased, corner Liberty and Pearl streets, a large delegation of the L. O. O. F., railroad men and neighbors attending. Services were conducted by Rev. Wm. H. Warren, pastor Congregational church, who had acquaintance with the deceased Cleveland, and who spoke with feeling and impressiveness. The remains were escorted to the C. C. The deceased, Adin Barnes, was born in Marion county, Ohio, August twenty-eighth, 1840. He enlisted from there in 1861 in Company I. Third Regiment, O. V. I., of which General Keifer was major for a time. He re-enlisted in July, 1861, for three years in the Sixtyfifth O. V. I., and was discharged the following year. Other points regarding him have been already correctly given. Coroner Coleman began the inquest Saturday night, hearing the testimony of the railroad men who were with Barnes at the time of the accident, and one or two others, then adjourning the hearing until this afternoon Considerable interest centers in the question whether or not deceased was struck by the shed roof over the warehouse door. Mr. Bohrer, the switchman, who was the nearest man to Barnes when he fell, testified under oath, as stated Saturday, that he was, but none of the other witnesses so testified Nothing of special significance was brought out beyond that which has been already pub lished.

Coroner Coleman rendered as his verdict his afternoon that Adin Barnes came to his eath directly through the defect in the hand-hold on top of the car, and tound he was not struck by the shed-roof on the Critical Illness of Hon. J. H. Littler. Judge Littler has been confined to his house most of the time since adjournment of the Legislature, and late last week it was known there was danger of paralysis, which plainly threatened. not survive the night. Indeed the family were summoned about one o'clock a. m. Sunday, under the impression be was dying. The Judge continued in this condition all day Sunday and last night, friends having small topes of his recovery, but this morning he rallied a little, and is reported somewhat better. While he may survive this shock it is seriously doubted if he ever fully recovers. Although a man of fine physique and good constitution, the Judge is pretty well advanced in years, and his experience at Columbus the past season, in the great amount of hard work done and otherwise, has been of a character to render him liable to such an attack. Getting the Combination

I knew that there were only three or four million permutations and comor four million permutations and com-binations of numbers, and so I thought I would run through them all. It wouldn't take long, and one of them, of course would be the right one. Winding up the dial on a fireproof sar-cophagus all night with the thermometer forty-five degrees below zero is ex-citing, but the excitement does not repay one for the nervous exhaustion and resultant fatigue. Well, I screwed the North American dofunny around to right and left as long as I can remember, and when the senior partner came down at 9 o'clock he said I sat there with a small lamp in my hand mechan-ically turning the knob back and forth and yearning for my bed clothes. When a thing is so secure that you can't get it yourself, you naturally think that the matter of security can be over-done.—Bill Nye, in St. Paul Herald.

No serious accidents have occurred in the starry beavens since I began to observe and study their habits. Not a star has waxed, not a star has waned to my knowledge. Not a planet has season-cracked or shown any of the injurious effects of our rigorous climate. Not a star has ripened prematurely or fallen off the trees. The varnish on the very oldest stars I find on close and critical examination to be in splendid condition. They will all no doubt wear as long as we need them, and wink on long after we have ceased to wink back.

Every now and then another astronomer comes to me and says: "Professor, I have discovered another new star and intend to file it. Found it last night about a mile and a half south of the zenith running loose. Haven't heard of anybody who has lost a star of the fifteenth magnitude, about thirteen hands high, with light mane and tail, have you?" Now, how do I know that he has discovered a brand new star? How can I discover whether he is or playing an old, threadbare star on me

A man at Pataha City, W. T., has the rare and remarkable name of An-gevine June Titus and Company Favor. All that part of the above-described name lying in front of the word "Favor" is his Christian name. His parents lived in a small town in Maine, and a circus came there for the first time in the history of the place. It was owned by Angevine, June, Titus & Co., and it was a first-rate show. Mr. and Mrs. Favor attended in the afternoon, and were so pleased that they named their boy, born on the following day, for the proprietors of the enterprise. The son has borne his infliction without murmur, and is fondly hoping for the time when Pataha City shall have grown to be large enough to justify the visit of a circus.

Dr. Groron: My Dear Friend—I would be a traitor to my own feelings if I failed to give you some testimony of my gratifued to you, for what you have done for me. When you were called in to attend to my case, I was in a very critical and dangerous condition. Indeed, it was the opinion of every one who called to see me that fould not recover. Now I fully believe that your skill as a physician, and the close attention and good care which your kind heart gave me, alone averied the fatal termination of my case. My toot is and has been entirely healed for three weeks past; and is altogether free from pain. Such is the happy result of your intelligent treatment of my case.
